Amel Toroman received a Master's degree in Electrotechnical science from the Faculty of Technical Engineering of the University of Bihac. Currently, he is a doctoral student at the Faculty of Technical Engineering of the University of Bihac, and he is currently a higher teaching assistant at the University of Bihac, Technical Faculty and performs exercises on subjects: Modelling and simulations, Architecture computers, Automatic control II, Artificial intelligence and expert systems, Digital signal processing, Computer Networks, Theory of information and codding, Telecommunication, and Multimedia systems. His research interests include microprocessor systems, computer networks, real-time systems, artificial intelligence, and automation control. He is a member of the organizing board international conference, development, and modernization of production (RIM). He is authored or co-authored 11 research papers.