

Vuk Milošević, PhD, is an Assistant Professor at the University of Nis, Faculty of Civil Engineering and Architecture. He holds a Master's Degree in Architectural Engineering from the University of Nis, a second Master's Degree in Engineering from Anhalt University of Applied Sciences and a PhD degree in Architecture from the University of Nis. He published more than 70 scientific papers, mostly in the field of tensile membrane structures and prefabricated buildings. Recently he started research on the application of prefabricated buildings as a solution to climate change mitigation and adaptation. He is currently a researcher on the project "Revitalization of preschool buildings in Serbia: Program and methods of environmental, functional, and energy efficiency improvement" funded by the Ministry of Education, Science and Technological Development of the Republic of Serbia. He is a leader of the innovation project "Analysis and implementation of software for virtual reality in architectural design" and was a consultant for two other innovation projects funded by the Innovation Fund of the Republic of Serbia. He was a member of the Organization Board of two international conferences and an international exhibition, a member of a Scientific Board of an international conference about Urban Planning and an editor for two conference proceedings. Served as a reviewer for several scientific journals and conferences. He participated in Erasmus+ Staff Mobility for Teaching.
